I am committed to ensuring that my income is aligned with my values. The following is provided for transparency.

Independence

My work is independent. I am not a spokesperson or representative for anything more than myself.

Academic Affiliation

I have no current academic affiliations.

Grant Funding

I have no open grants. All past grants were publicly funded.

Income

I receive compensation from some speaking engagements, writing assignments, and royalties from sales of my books.

I also benefit from my partner's income. My partner shares my commitment to work consistent with our values.

We additionally receive investment income, primarily the result of social justice investing.

I do not receive financial compensation for referrals or for promoting other individuals, businesses, services or events. I do not participate in affiliate marketing. On occasion I accept free books, small gifts, meals and attend sponsored social events (with the exception below). I'm intentional in not allowing these to influence my endorsement.

No Diet Industry Ties

On January 5, 1999, I signed the following pledge which I honor to this day: "I, Linda Bacon, pledge not to accept money, gifts, or hospitality from the pharmaceutical, food, weight loss, and other related private industries; and to avoid conflicts of interest in my practice, teaching, and research."
